The Oakland Pet Adoption Center recently established five new Pet Adoption Outreach Center locations to help find homes for more homeless pets and is seeking additional partners to further expand. The Oakland Pet Adoption Center's mission is to "provide a temporary haven for animals" until it can "find them permanent, loving homes." The program currently focuses exclusively on cats and kittens.

Oakland Pet Adoption Center Administrative Supervisor Joanie Toole said that around 300 cats and kittens are currently being housed in the shelter and need to be adopted.

"We get 15-20 cats per day from people who are not being responsible and neutering their pets. They will bring us kittens or the adult cats that they can no longer keep. It's really quite sad, but we try our hardest to adopt out the ones that are adoptable," she said.

The new satellite locations include The Cat Practice in Birmingham, Pet Supplies Plus stores in Bloomfield Hills and White Lake, Advanced PetCare of Oakland in Clarkston and Allen Animal Hospital in Livonia.

"We really care about the animals.

Right now, with the way the economy is, there are a lot of animals that are losing their homes, so we wanted to try to figure out a way to help with the cat side of it, because we only deal with cats.

We really would like to find a home for all of them," said Joel Labo, manager of The Cat Practice.

Oakland Pet Adoption Center is looking for more veterinary hospitals to participate in the program.

A Pet Adoption Outreach Center must meet certain criteria, be pre-approved by the Oakland Pet Adoption Center and agree to care for the cats until a permanent home can be found.

"With these satellites that we can count on, we can ship some cats out of our shelter environment and into their environment, which is probably a little quieter, a little less stressful, and it really helps us out tremendously," Toole said.

Anyone interested in adopting a cat or kitten from a Pet Adoption Outreach Center should contact the locations directly for information on hours and availability of cats. Each center will have access to a database of the cats at every Pet Adoption Outreach Center to help people who may be looking for a particular breed or type of cat. Potential adopters must also meet certain criteria, provide a loving home and pay an adoption fee - which varies at each center. Cats must be spayed or neutered prior to adoption or following their adoption in the case of young kittens. The center also runs a series of lowcost spay/ neuter clinics to help reduce pet overpopulation.
