

Low-Cost Spay & Neuter

Getting your pet spayed or neutered is not only essential to reducing pet overpopulation, but significantly reduces the occurrence of many serious health problems including some cancers. Neutered male pets are less likely to be aggressive and to wander and spray; spayed females don't go into heat. If you have multiple pets, are rescuing stray dogs or feral cats, or just need low-cost alternatives to better care for your pets, consider these low-cost spay and neuter resources in your area.
